

DE LA BARRA TAKES UP NEW DUTIES AS GOVERNMENT HEAD

PRESIDENT DIAZ IS DOWN AND OUT AND THE NEW REGIME CONTROLS AFFAIRS IN MEXICO.

ISSUES A STATEMENT

Madero Will Shortly Go to Mexico City to Aid in Restoring Peace—Will Be Candidate for the Presidency.

[BY UNITED PRESS.] Mexico City, May 26.—And scenes of wild rejoicing which closely followed the overthrow of the old regime, the new president, Francisco De La Barra, diplomat, educator and lawyer of international fame, today, in the yellow palace of the national palace, from which Porfirio Diaz ruled for a third of a century, took the oath of office as provisional president of the republic of Mexico.

He pledged himself to uphold the national honor and to rule only until order shall have been restored and a president and vice president elected by the people will be installed. The city is tranquil today.

The condition of President Diaz of Mexico today is grave and his intimate associates say his recovery may not be sufficient for him to leave the republic. The unchecked jubilation of the masses over his resignation has depressed the aged man.

Diaz's Letter. The letter of resignation of President Diaz, which was directed to the president of the chamber of deputies, read as follows:

Sir:—The Mexican people who generously have covered me with honors, who proclaimed me as their leader during the great international war; who patriotically assisted me in all works undertaken to develop industry and the commerce of the republic, establish its credit, gain for it the respect of the world and obtain for it honorable position in the concert of nations; that same people, sir, has revealed in armed military bands, stating that my presence in the exercise of the supreme executive power is the cause of this insurrection.

"I do not know of any fact imputable to me which could have caused this social phenomenon, but permitting, though not admitting, that I may be unwittingly culpable of such a possibility, makes me the least able to reason out and decide my own culpability.

"Therefore, respecting, as I have always respected, the will of the people, and in accordance with article eighty-two of the federal constitution, I come before the supreme representatives of the nation, in order to resign, unreservedly, the office of president of the republic with which the national vote honored me, which I do with all the more reason since, in order to continue in office it would be necessary to shed Mexican blood, endangering the credit of the country, dissipating its wealth, exhausting its resources and exposing its policy to international complications.

"I hope, gentlemen, that when the passions which are inherent to all revolutions, have been calmed, a more conscientious and justified study will bring out in the national mind a correct acknowledgment, which will allow me to die, carrying engraved in my soul a just impression of the estimation of my life which throughout I have devoted and will devote to my countrymen. With all respect.

—PORFIRIO DIAZ.

La Satisfacción. May 26.—Shown a dispatch here today, telling of the resignation of Diaz, Francisco Madero said: "Diaz is gone from the backs of the Mexican people, thus removing the heaviest burden the people ever bore." Madero said he would go to the capital within six or eight days and later, if the people wanted him to, would run for president.

Madero today started preparations of a manifesto to be sent to the Mexican people and also a message to President De La Barra. He was swamped with congratulatory telegrams.

STATE CONTROL OF WATER POWER WILL PASS LEGISLATURE

Amendment Giving Control of State Railroad Commission Before Special Committee Will Pass Legislature Without Opposition.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., May 26.—The water power control question will be settled by the adoption of what is known as Substantive Amendment No. 18 to Bill 818, which was the original water power measure. This was demonstrated pretty clearly yesterday afternoon at the hearing before the special committee on water power, forestry and drainage, when the bill was very thoroughly discussed. The measure provides for absolute control of the water power question and places their government and regulation under the supervision of the railroad commission. A franchise tax of 5 per cent of the franchise value is to be exacted, the provision being, however, that in no case shall this tax be less than ten cents a horsepower nor more than two dollars a horsepower.

In opposition to the bill there appeared yesterday afternoon former State Senator Theodore Bruzau of Grand Rapids, and John H. Sutherland, an attorney of this city. Both intimated that they believed the theory of state control of water powers such as was proposed in the bill, could not be sustained in the courts and definitely stated that there was no question that the courts would be asked to construe the bill and determine as to its constitutionality.

Senator Hastings asserted that he believed the state right of control could be upheld upon two theories, the one being the police power of the state to regulate the use of navigable streams, and the second being that the title to the power granted by navigable streams rests in the state.

The hearing brought out little that was new in regard to this water power question for the reason that it was more or less perfunctory on the part of the opposition to the bill, it being the belief of the opponents of the measure that the test of constitutionality is the sole point involved in the bill and that this can only be decided by the courts.

The bill will probably be reported to the legislature either Saturday or early next week, and will go right through on the calendar without any material opposition.

The reunions usually are held at the state school in Delavan, but Sept. E. W. CONSTITUTION OF NEW REPUBLIC IS NEARLY FINISHED Tentative Draft of Constitution of Portugal Practically Complete For Submission to Convention.

[BY UNITED PRESS.] Lisbon, May 26.—The provisional government has practically completed the tentative draft of the constitution it will submit to the coming convention called to adopt a fundamental code for the new Portuguese republic. Parliament will be elected on a democratic franchise and consist of 200 members. As in France, it will elect the president, and as in Switzerland, both president and cabinet members will serve for five years.

The president will have almost no power whatever and the power of the cabinet members will be much limited by parliament. The provisional government leaders consider present day diplomacy almost a complete fraud, so no provision is made for a ministerial or ambassador service, the minister of foreign affairs being left to handle the duties of his office by mail or cable. For commercial reasons there will, however, be a small and very moderately paid consular service. In every direction the great pains are taken to hold down expenses.

The constitutional convention may make whatever changes it likes in this draft but there will probably be no material ones.

TELEPHONE MATTER CAUSED DISCUSSION

Assembly Fought For Two Hours Yesterday Over Old Issue Between Bell and Independent Companies.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., May 26.—For two hours yesterday afternoon the assembly fought over the old issue between the Bell Telephone Company and the independents regarding physical connection and anti-duplication. The independents which are not subscribers of the Bell declare the bill is drawn in the interests of the Bell. It provides for physical connection both as to toll and local exchanges, when ordered by the railroad commission after it is shown that neither exchange will suffer irreparable injury through the connection.

The assembly rejected by a tie vote an amendment offered by Speaker Ingram, who took the floor throughout the debate, striking out the anti-duplication clause which provides that in cities and villages there shall be no rival exchanges located except on consent of the commission. Mr. Ingram held that the bill in this form would give complete of the telephone situation in this state to the Bell people by placing them in a position whereby they would make their own terms with country lines or else build new lines to compete with existing country lines. Whereas, the country lines, it was argued, would only be able to obtain entrance to cities under the terms dictated by the Bell company because, shut off from building rival exchanges in the cities if the Bell told them not to.

Another amendment by Mr. Flanagan was also rejected. This added towns to the list covered by the anti-duplication feature of the bill. The fight was interrupted by the supper at 6 p. m., when a recess was ordered until this morning for resumption of the battle.

GUN TOURNAMENT AT THE FAIR GROUNDS

JANESVILLE GUN CLUB HELD FIRST TOURNAMENT OF THE YEAR TODAY.

ABOUT FIFTY ENTRIES

Local Gunners, Men From Nearby Cities and Some of Best Known Professional and Amateur Shots in Country Participated in Shoot.

With an ideal day and everything conducive to the success of the affair, the first tournament of the year was held by the Janesville Gun Club at the fair grounds today. The weather, although warm, was somewhat modified by a gentle breeze, which made the shooting more comfortable for the shooters, although at times the breeze had been quite brisk. About fifty guns were entered in the shoot, including two full squads from the local gun club, trap shooters from nearby towns and cities and some of the best known professional and amateur gun men in the country.

There are twelve events in today's tournament, ten professional, and two amateur events. The latter two do not count in the awarding of prizes of the tournament, merchandise prizes being offered for the two shoots for amateurs. The new western trap, recently installed by the club, was put in operation for the tournament, and everything connected with the shoot worked smoothly. H. R. Patterson of Milwaukee, a gun expert, acted as secretary of the tournament, keeping the individual records made.

Without doubt the gunners who assembled here were as good as could be found anywhere in the country. Besides the professionals, there were a number of clever amateurs present. Up to noon no records had been broken, but all the entrants appeared to be doing very well. Among the professionals here at the shoot are W. D. Stannard, who represents a well known cartridge firm, and well known here. He has been interested in the sport for a number of years. His record is a long run of 348 straight shots. He also won the Board of Trade diamond badge last year. He is well known to a large number in the city. With Mr. Stannard was Lester Gorman, another who has displayed considerable ability in the use of firearms. Mr. Gorman was a former National league baseball player, but since leaving the national pastime has won considerable renown as a trap shooter. At Pittsburg last month he made a record of three hundred and twenty straight breaks and at St. Louis smashed 995 out of 1,000 of the clay targets. At the Pennsylvania state shoot he won the prize for the highest general average.

Another of the professionals who is known far and wide is Ed. S. Graham of Ingleside. He and his brother, J. H. Graham, the latter a crack amateur gun man, were here for the tournament. Other amateurs better known as "Capt. Jack" and one of the best shots in the west, T. F. Dering of Columbus, who was champion of Wisconsin, was also here.

The shooting began at half past nine o'clock this morning and continued throughout the day until late this afternoon. The shooting has been carried in squads of five, which made it possible to keep on with the tournament without a stop through the noon hour. A refreshment stand was situated at the grounds, which made it unnecessary for the gunners to come to town for dinner. Cartridges of all varieties were easily available, other conveniences were added for the benefit of those participating in the shoot, chairs and camp stools being provided nearby for those who wished to watch the gunners.

The entries to the tournament in the order in which they shot were: J. H. Graham, Ingleside. M. Donnelly, Chicago. T. F. Dering, Columbus, Wis. F. Wolf ("Capt. Jack") Milwaukee. Ed. S. Graham, Ingleside. W. McVior, Janesville. W. E. Lawler, Janesville. J. McVior, Janesville. J. W. Echlin, Janesville. G. E. Mathews, Chicago. D. Miller, West Allis. J. M. Rechart, Watertown. JIMMIE BROWN SENT TO REFORM SCHOOL

James Brown, Aged Twelve Years, Regular "Bad" Boy, Sentenced to Reform School for Stealing.

Standing before Judge Einfeld in the municipal court this morning, the boyish frame shaking with sobs, Jimmie Brown, aged twelve years, was sentenced to the reform school at Waubesa until he was twenty-one, for repeated thefts of money and other things from his brother-in-law, James W. Reed, and a general hatred towards anything that resembles a school. The boy's parents are both dead and for the past two years he has been living with his sister, Mrs. James Reed, 1025 Wall street. According to his brother-in-law, Mr. Reed, the boy is incorrigible, refusing to attend school, and was in the habit of stealing from his guardians and running away. The complaint was brought by Mr. Reed in court this morning. About two weeks ago, the boy entered a room of his sister's and took a revolver and fifty-five cents in change and left for parts unknown. The next day he was heard of the boy was when Mr. Schumaker, who lives near the cemetery on Oak Hill avenue, brought the boy to the police station, saying that he had been living with him for the past week and had departed last night with a pocketbook containing twenty-five cents.

It was learned that "Jimmie" had gone from Mr. Reed's house to the home of Mrs. Harding, opposite the city hall, where he had spent the night. From there he went to the home of Mr. Schumaker, where he lived out. When his uncle heard that the boy was in the city lockup he came down and entered a complaint, recommending that he be sentenced to the reform school. When the little fellow appeared before the judge in court, he seemed to be at a loss to know what to do or say. He admitted that he knew he was doing wrong all the time but did not venture to say anything further. The uncle testified that Jimmie would not stay in school and that he would stay out and run away for a week at a time. Judge Einfeld took a very kindly attitude towards the young lad, and in sending him to the reform school he said that he thought that that was just what was needed, and advised him to be a good boy and do as he was told and he would get along all right.

The boy broke down and sobbed as the judge told him that he was to be sent away. When asked how old he was he said that he was twelve, according to his sister, but that he had been told that he was fourteen. He will be taken to the school at Waubesa by Sheriff Hanson.

Following a message from the Milwaukee police to the effect that they knew of no grounds on which he could be held, the local police yesterday afternoon released Steven Hobart, who was held in the lock-up on suspicion after he had been found trying to sell some jewelry at a second hand store Wednesday. He was arrested by the police after he had tried to dispose of a gold watch, a fountain pen and a ruby ring for the sum of $10 at one of the second hand stores here. His story was to the effect that he had come by the property honestly and that the reason that he was making such a slaughter of the price was that he wanted to get enough money to get to Cleveland. He was considered that this was sufficient grounds for holding the man, who gave his name as Steven Hobart. Claiming to have come from Milwaukee, the man's record in that city of police. Yesterday afternoon word was received from Milwaukee that there was no one answering to Hobart's description who was known there and consequently the man was released.

DEAL FOR PURCHASE OF PARK PROPERTY HAS BEEN CLOSED

Transfer of Old Fair Grounds To Janesville Park Association Has Practically Been Completed.

Legal papers for the transfer of the property of the Eastwick estate at the Fair Grounds to the Janesville Park Association have been drawn up and the deal for the acquisition of the property by the association has practically been completed. The association paid to the owners a certain sum down and arrangements were made whereby portions of the rest will be paid at regular times until the full amount has been paid on the purchase price.

At present the subscriptions secured for the purchase of the park and fixing up the property amount to between thirteen and fourteen thousand dollars, but the officers feel that this is not sufficient to carry out the plan of the association in full. Five thousand dollars additional, it is thought, will be enough to complete the purchase of the property and make the changes planned. For this purpose, President John C. Nichols and Secretary C. S. Putnam desire to see all those interested in the project, who are willing to subscribe toward it.

A half mile track which it is planned to build on the grounds was surveyed yesterday and as soon as a contractor can be found competent to do the work the contract will be let, and the work commenced. The local association was requested to join a racing circuit with Joliet, Ill., and other cities, including Milwaukee in this state and secretary Putnam has written to Milwaukee asking for further information on the matter before it is decided on. A regulation paddock fence will be built around the track sixty-one inches high, of woven wire, such as is used for such purposes.

No decision has been reached by the board of directors as to what shall be done with the old buildings. This will be settled upon after conferring with a contractor as to the advisability of remodeling them or tearing them down and using the lumber in them in the construction of the new structures.

Hamm, pathfinder for the Chicago Athletic Clubs of Chicago to Janesville automobile endurance test run to be held June 10th by cars from the Chicago Automobile and go, arrived in the city today to complete arrangements for the accommodations and entertainments of the two hundred enthusiasts who will take part in the run.

TEST HYDRANTS AS TO THEIR POWER IN THROWING STREAMS

Experts From the State Railway Commission Visited Janesville This Morning.

Following the plan of the city council to institute in several places in the city, extensions of the mains for fire service, two members of the engineering branch of the state railroad commission conducted pressure tests here today. Two tests were made by Mr. and Mrs. John Dieck, Sr., took place at the corner of St. Mary's and Milton avenues.

Two years ago Chief Kilne recommended to the council that extensions of the mains be made in different parts of the city to better the water service in case of fire. It was after the council had passed on this that the matter was turned over according to law to the rate commission.

The hydrants in the vicinity of the Hanson Furniture Company came in for special consideration. It was considered that, as the main to which this hydrant was connected was a dead end and the pressure here was insufficient for fire service. In view of the fact that a test would have to be made by the state commission before leave to make the extensions was granted, centered the trial at the Hanson Company's hydrant on Hyatt street. The whole test as far as this locality is concerned was finished this morning and with the data collected by the experts, W. E. Miller and George L. Gross, the report will be submitted to the commission in the near future.

The system employed was a very thorough one. Pressure gauges were placed at the power plant and another at the plug. Accurate records were made of the flow by this means. Both single and double streams were tried. No definite result of the test can be learned until after the data has been submitted by the men who made the tests. Similar plans were followed at the corner of St. Mary's and Milton avenues.

MONAHAN CASE AGAIN BEING THRASHED OUT

Fairbanks-Morse Endeavoring to Circumvent Court to Change Verdict.
In Recent Adverse Verdict.

Nearly the entire afternoon in the circuit court was taken up today in thrashing out the recent and following arguments of the counsel for the Fairbanks-Morse Company of Heliol, for a change of answers to certain questions in the special verdict recently rendered in that court against them in favor of James Monahan, for injuries. The case was one in which the plaintiff recently received a verdict of $8,000 for injuries received while he was an employee of that company. The arguments are along the line of the idea that certain of the questions in the verdict, which were answered touching on contributory negligence, should be changed. In this case a judgment will be rendered in favor of the defendant.

It is understood that in case this request before Judge Grimm fails, the defense will put in a motion for the setting aside of the verdict, and a new trial will be the result. Judge Grimm will leave the city following the completion of this case and the time of his return is not definitely known.

THE THEATER

"THE GIRL FROM U. S. A." the coming attraction at the Myers Theatre Saturday, May 27, matinee and evening is a repetition of happy surprises from the rise of the first to the fall of the final curtain. This girl is not a "Glee-club-mid-afternoon" creation, but one who shows just how we stand with some of the strange people of the world. She is a delightful object lesson of patriotism to the youngsters and a joyous revelation of national feeling but real social complications in the hands of the Arabian Knights to the grown-up folk, who yet are only "Children of a larger growth."

THE GIRL FROM THE U. S. A.

LEW DOCKSTADER. Lew Dockstader and the organization touring under his management and which he is pleased to call his Twentieth Century Minstrel will appear for one evening, Monday, May 29 at Myers Theatre.

Mr. Dockstader has not been seen in this section for three seasons now, but his coming will be none the less welcome on that account as he is a great favorite both artistically and socially in this city. Some there are who will affirm that minstrel shows are going out of fashion, but there are hosts of theatregoers who still give allegiance to this purely American form of entertainment and all of them will admit that Dockstader is at the head of his own particular profession. This is due, no doubt, to the fact that Dockstader always keeps abreast of the times, is an omnivorous reader of the daily papers and keeps thoroughly posted on the news of the day. It is said that in his present show he has gotten away from the old fashioned minstrel idea and that it really possesses a plot and he points with pride to the fact that it is the only entertainment of the kind which ever had a story. The proverbial first part is changed so much that it would hardly be recognized by any of the old timers. In the Dockstader show the curtain rises on a reception given by the "Possum Hunt Club" of which the comedian, in the character of Professor Dobbles is a member, the meeting having been called to select some one of them to accompany the redoubtable Dr. Cook on his search for the North Pole. None of the members are at all anxious to accompany the doctor and finally the choice falls upon Dobbles who is obliged to go with the explorer much against his will. The balance of the plot has to do with the adventures which befall them on their visit to the frozen north and finishes with their return to the Rathskeller of the club house to receive the congratulations of the club members who unanimously vote a reward of $12.00 to Dobbles to defray his expenses. It must not be inferred, however, that all the features of old time minstrelsy have been eliminated from the Dockstader show. The promise is given that the company is composed of a full quota of singers, dancers and comedians, many of whom are well and favorably known in their own particular field. Among the most prominent are: Carroll Johnson, Eddie Mazzer, "Happy" Savitz, Charles Park, William Brandt, Frank Farrow, Allan Campbell, Charles Raymond, Thomas Hughes, Willie Smith and about seventy others.

WISCONSIN A MODEL FOR OTHER STATES

EX-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAYS
STATE IS OBJECT LESSON FOR UNION.

LA FOLLETTE GIVEN PRAISE

Colonel Lauds Work Accomplished and at Present Being Done In Social Economics and Governmental Affairs.

New York, May 26.—"Wisconsin: An Object Lesson for the Rest of the Union," is the caption of an article in the Outlook from the pen of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt. Among other things, the colonel says:

"I doubt whether American students of social economics fully realize the extraordinary work accomplished during the last decade, and now being accomplished in the state of Wisconsin under the lead of Senator La Follette and the group of entirely practical and at the same time zealously enthusiastic workers who have come into active control of the state mainly or largely because of the lead he has given them.

"We can now, at least in many cases, look for leadership to Wisconsin when we desire to try to solve the great social and industrial problems of the present and the future, instead of being forced always to look abroad. It is noteworthy that in Wisconsin when one speaks of such leadership it is possible to include therein the student as well as the political leader. In no other state in the Union has any university done the same work for the community that has been done in Wisconsin by the University of Wisconsin.

Praises Wisconsin's Public Men.

"It is only in Wisconsin, so far as I know, that a really serious and thorough effort is making to find out how to frame measures which shall give the people effective control over the big corporations without going into wild extravagances, and in this effort politicians and student have joined hands. Again, I found the legislators grappling with the question of workmen's compensation. . . . They were engaged in considering the introduction into the state political system of the initiative, referendum and recall.

Practical Results Sought.

"What they were considering in each case were the probable practical results of the measure, what it would do for good, what it would do for evil, and how in actual practice it should be guarded and so applied as to make it likely that it would secure the maximum of good at the cost of the minimum of evil.

"After my visit I felt like congratulating Wisconsin upon what it had done and was doing, and I felt much more like congratulating the country as a whole because it has in the state of Wisconsin a pioneer blazing the way along which we Americans must make our civic and industrial advance during the next few decades."

WILL HAVE BOXING EXHIBITION HERE

Janesville Athletic Club Arranging
Card for Entertainment of Chicago Autoists on June 15.

Hugh M. Joyce, Jr., of the Janesville Athletic club was in Chicago yesterday in conference with Walter Eckersall of the Tribune sporting staff regarding the bout to be put on by the local club at the roller rink on the night of June 15, when the autoists will be here on the reliability run from Chicago. They talked with Harry Forbes, ex-champion of the lightweight class, who is seeking to regain his lost honors, and although no deal was made with Forbes, it was left to Eckersall to sign him up. Eckersall will also referee the bouts here on that occasion. Forbes is a classy scrapper and will be the best that has ever given an exhibit before the local fight fans. There was some haggling over the price, but it is thought that Eckersall will fix the up satisfactory to both parties concerned. It is planned to match Forbes against Kid Ketchel of Milwaukee for the windup event of the evening. Other Chicago scrappers were seen yesterday and a good card for the occasion will be made up. Several Milwaukee boxers will probably take part in the bouts. Milwaukee was called up over the long distance today and an effort made to get some of the promising young fighters from that place. The Crown City youngsters have scored a hit in their appearance in this city and some good sport is in prospect.

A certain number are to qualify in each event and the finals together with the long distance runs will be held tomorrow.

"Drummers" Meet in Anniston.
Anniston, Ala., May 26.—Anniston's population was increased several hundred today by an invasion of "drummers" from every section of the state. The occasion is the annual convention of the Alabama grand council of United Commercial Travelers which this morning began the first of a two days series of sessions at which business appertaining to the affairs of the organization is to be transacted, while social diversions and excursions to pleasure resorts will also take up much of the delegates time. The opening session today was presided over by Grand Counselor W. A. Anderson of Selma. Read the want ads.

SUFFERING RELATED IN CIRCUIT COURT

Tale of Long Suffering From Abuse of Husband Told in Divorce Case
This Afternoon.

One of the most flagrant cases of cruelty and inhuman treatment on the part of a husband and father was alleged this afternoon, in the divorce action of Mary E. Hutchins against Francis J. Hutchins, before Judge Grinn. The plaintiff brought charges of cruel and inhuman treatment, but no one could realize the full extent of her sufferings for the past twenty-six years until they came from her own lips during the hearing. A judgment of divorce was granted.

There are five children in the family, and they, as well as the wife, are alleged to have been the victims of the husband for many years. Their home was in Lima where they resided on a farm. Subbing, the long suffering mother told of the way in which she alleged she and her children had been kicked and beaten by Hutchins and how she had endured it until last March when she fled with her two youngest children to the home of her parents in Milton Junction.

Two instances of the limit to which the man would go was told. On one occasion, it was alleged, he struck one of his boys over the head with a milk stool in such a way as to cut open the scalp, because he was not milking the cows "dry." At another time, it was alleged, one of the children broke his arm while playing at school, and Hutchins refused to allow the mother to call a doctor to set the bone.

The mother was allowed the custody of the two younger children, $800 in cash, and $16.66 per month as alimony. George Sutherland appeared for the plaintiff and John Cunningham for the defendant, entering no defense.

FORMAL OPENING OF GOLF CLUB TUESDAY

Arrangements Made For Annual Game
Between East and West Side Teams.

Memorial Day, Tuesday, May 30, is the date of the annual opening of the Janesville Golf Club. Unusual interest is being manifested in the event this year and an enthusiastic beginning of the season of the country club is expected.

Arrangements are nearly complete for the program of the day both socially and in the way of games. In the afternoon there will be an eighteen hole match between members from the east and west side of the city, the losing side to furnish the supper for the winners.

George E. King, who has this part of the day in charge, has also arranged for an approaching and putting contest for the ladies, which will take place in the afternoon. Both of these events are looked forward to with a great deal of interest.

The regular program of past years is to be followed out in the way of the social opening. Supper will be served at the club house at six-thirty, after which there will be dancing. George M. McKay, chairman of the house committee has requested that those who are going to be at the club for the supper must have their orders in to him by Monday evening.

Harry Gifford Camp To Attend Services At Baptist Church in Body
Sunday.—Memorial Day
Plans.

Members of the Harry Gifford Camp of the Spanish-American War Veterans will attend the morning services at the Baptist church next Sunday in a body, an invitation having been extended to them by Rev. Hazen. They will meet at their hall at 10 o'clock and march in a body to the divine service.

The boys of '98 will also join in the observance of Memorial Day and turn out in a body to do honor to those of the G. A. R. and to pay tribute to the soldiers who have died. With this in view they will meet at their hall on Tuesday the 30th at 9 o'clock and in all probabilities will march to the cemetery where they will assist in the decoration of the graves of our country's heroes.

Identity of man being sought in every part of the United States. Only clues upon which to work. At top—Slain man as he probably appeared in life. No. 1—Glove found at plumbing station. Number 2—Key to pocket. Number 3—Laundry mark on shirt. Number 4—Wire by means of which hands were bound to body.

years old, whose body was found near the Plumbing Station in the Chicago Chicago, Ill.—The identity of a young man apparently about thirty years old, still unexplained. A few clues, including a bloodstained glove found near the Plumbing Station, a wire by means of which his arms were bound to his body, a small key and a laundry mark, are all that the police have to work upon in attempting the solution of the mystery. He was a man apparently of refinement; his clothing was of good material.

The most tangible clue of all was the laundry mark, and upon this identification much depends. A reward has been offered for the identification of the mark and it is hoped that the identification by the driver who had the man on his route will quickly furnish his name and address and develop up the fact of his disappearance. The crime was one of the most brutal in recent police annals. The marks on his body show that he was shot through the leg, causing a fracture of the bone; that he was bound with wire so that he could not move or help himself in any way before he was thrown into the river. While it was thought that he must have been a Chicago have been made throughout the country.

AT MODERATE COST

HOUSES MAY BE FURNISHED IN ARTISTIC STYLE.

Special Attention is Now Being Paid to the Designing of Moderate
Priced Fabrics of Every Shade and Color.

A woman who is furnishing a recently-built house told a friend that it was now the easiest thing in the world to get furniture covering of the style, the color and the grade preferred, says the New York Sun.

"In the store where I placed my order," said she, "there were hundreds of varieties to select, representing almost as many grades of price. As a result I think I will have a very artistic house at relatively small cost."

At the store where she shopped, a man who has been handling the upholstery goods for 30 years said that manufacturers and retailers now paid special attention to the designing of moderate priced fabrics, for the reason that the demand for them was far ahead of the demand for the cheapest or the costliest. As an illustration he showed jutes, cotton reps, mercerized reps and cotton tapestries, all of which he said are in great demand at this time of the year, which included designs and colors as good as those in high-priced goods.

Cotton tapestries, for instance, used extensively for bedrooms and plain living-rooms may be had in nearly any shade of art green, in old Venetian red, old rose, ecru or brown, both soft-toned and two-toned. One design in jasper effects showed small French wreaths of old rose on an ecru ground. One of the newest patterns had five-inch long, very narrow bars of champagne or cream color on a green, red or rose background.

Some of the jutes look like and feel like oriental fabrics and they cost only from $1 to $2 a yard and are 60 inches wide. The ground color in the most beautiful is champagne, patterned with inch and a half stripes in a tiny flower design done in Persian colors. Between these stripes, which are five inches apart, are small oblongs of Persian colors. Other designs in oval have stripes, wreaths or oblongs of beautifully blended colors on a smoke color, a gray or a cream ground. Some charming French wreath designs are self-toned.

The mercerized cotton rep, which like the others is stout, strong and a good weaver and has a silk-like finish, is shown in three wales, the widest nearly a quarter of an inch, and the greens and reds and ecrus are the most effective.

Now basket weaves and colors distinguish the arms cloth, classed also among the inexpensive upholstery fabrics and more popular perhaps than any for use in dens and studies in town and in foyer halls and living-rooms out of town.

Going up the scale, the expert said that woolen rep in plain colors was one of the best wearing and for the time being best liked fabrics for upholstery in foyer halls and living-rooms both in and out of New York, the peler greens and yellowed ecrus being popular shades.

Plain colors are the rule for libraries, sitting room and parlor, tapestry colors and effects being reserved for drawing rooms and the costlier grades of goods, that is if purchasers want to follow the trend of fashion and the most artistic weaves.

Mohair glaze is the technical name for what looks like a cross between panne velvet and dull satin, and this is a favorite for parlors and living-rooms and is suitable also for libraries because of its stout qualities. This is of plain colors, very dull green perhaps the favorite.

Australian Names.

"Nearly all my friends," remarked an Australian the other day, "call me a 'cornstalk.' I've quit correcting them long ago."

"Now, as it happens, the term should only be applied to the people of New South Wales. They are the tall, slim blokes who look as though you could break them in two between your finger and thumb. I come from the colony of Victoria, where we are known by the still more unattractive sobriquet of 'gumsuckers,' on account of our great forests of blue gum trees."

"Queensland is in the tropics, and its inhabitants are called 'banana eaters.' The South Australians are 'crow eaters,' because in times of drought the natives are sometimes reduced to the use of crows as food."

"So call me a 'gumsucker' if you like, but never a 'cornstalk' and the next time you want to apply a nickname to an Australian ask him from which colony he comes."

Art Arcade for Carlsbad.

The project of an art arcade for Carlsbad, which has been for so many years a vexed question among the tradesmen's associations, is now making progress. The preparations have been pushed with noticeable energy. Extensive earth and rock excavations have been necessary to make room at one part of the Posthof Promenade for the building, and it can now be seen that useful work has been done. The little booths which formerly stood here and gave the appearance of an annual fair were certainly no ornament for the most fashionable promenade among the world's watering places. Instead of this medley of booths of all possible colors and styles a tasteful, roomy and stately building will now appear, which will provide a worthy home for the creations of Carlsbad Industries, as well as those of natives and foreign artists, thus filling a long-felt want.

FIRE MARSHAL HAS INVESTIGATED MANY SUSPICIOUS FIRES

Demands For Investigation of Fires in State Have Been Many Since January 1st.—Prosecutions Made.

At no time since the establishment of the State Fire Marshal's Department has there been such general demand for the investigation of suspicious fires as since the first of this year. So many fires of a suspicious nature have been reported, calling for investigation, that the regular force has been unable to handle them promptly. Temporary appointments of extra men have been made, and still it has been impossible to take up all investigations promptly. It is the aim of the department always to do so, as right after the fire is the most promising time to get evidence, and, at best, it is extremely hard to get evidence of a convincing nature, and delay often gives the opportunity to remove incriminating evidence.

The reason for this increased demand for investigation may be due partially to different causes. As a rule business has been rather dull the past fall and winter, and some business men found their balance on the wrong side of the ledger and were tempted to look to insurance companies to make up this balance.

Another reason, no doubt, is that the work of the department has become better known, and local authorities have taken more interest in this work and made more careful inquiry than in the past, in that way bringing to light incriminating circumstances, which were formerly overlooked. This greater local activity and cooperation has contributed largely to the success of the department the past few months.

Ten prosecutions have been commenced, in which this department has been interested. Each of these have been either successfully terminated, or are in a fair way to be soon.

The following are the cases in which prosecutions have been started, and the defendants either convicted or bound over for trial.

At Robbins the store and dwelling of F. A. Trippe was dynamited, resulting in a fire which completely destroyed it. W. E. Finnegan secured a confession from Walter Grossman and John Holloway to having discharged the dynamite. They are awaiting sentence.

At Green Bay the store of John Baum was set on fire and an investigation by T. M. Purcell and G. H. Kline resulted in the arrest of Julius Peters, a discharged employee, and he has since been bound over to the circuit court for trial.

At Oakfield the residence of Mary Roberts was destroyed, investigation by W. E. Finnegan resulted in the arrest of the owner charged with burning the property for the purpose of obtaining insurance. The trial of this case has just been completed, the jury finding the defendant guilty and sentence is pending.

At Beaver Dam the barn of John Gutz was destroyed and the local authorities arrested Wm. Poeppel on the charge of having stolen a horse from the building before it burned. A confession to having set the barn on fire was obtained by S. E. Summers and sentence for the crime of arson is now pending.

At Hopedale two barn fires of clearly incendiary origin called for an investigation which resulted in the obtaining of confessions by S. E. Summers from Chas. Dawson and Roy McLaughlin. They later entered a plea of guilty and received sentences of 6 years in the State Reformatory and 5 years in the State Penitentiary respectively.

At Chippewa Falls three attempts were made to set fire to the residence of John Dolan. The local authorities arrested Alphonse Price and the investigation was then taken up by J. E. Florin, who later resulted in the trial. Price was found guilty and sentenced to ten years in the Penitentiary.

At Milwaukee Andrew Molka and Stephen Suklowicki were arrested for attempting to burn the store building occupied by them. W. G. End assisted in the investigation and the first trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury. The second trial just closed resulted in the release of Suklowicki and the conviction and sentence of Molka for two years.

At Racine fire in a dwelling house on which there had been a mechanical fire alarm and fire insurance started. Investigation by T. M. Purcell and W. G. End resulted in the arrest of the owner, Martha Smith.

FITTING TRIBUTE TO DEPARTED VETERANS

Inell will deliver the address. The program of school children will furnish music. Other details will be arranged at the meeting tonight.

How To Display the Flag.

All patriotic citizens will pay their respects to the departed veterans on Memorial Day by displaying the stars and stripes, and because there are so many ways in which they may be improperly shown it may be well to give the suggestions outlined by the United States Flag Association. Among the things to be noted are:

"On Memorial Day the flag should be flown at half-mast and should be first raised to full mast and then lowered to half."

"A flag that is hung with the field toward the house is upside down and is a signal of distress."

"When displaying a flag over a door

TOBACCO NEWS OF EDGERTON MARKET

Preparations For Transplanting Under Way—Some Movement in Old Goods the Past Week.

Wisconsin tobacco growers never faced better prospects for a crop than are now present, according to the Edgerton Reporter of May 26th. The weather conditions are most excellent for the development of the plant buds, while in many instances the plants are nearly ready for the fields and growers are hurrying the preparations for transplanting. Some planting will be started the coming week and from then on the farmers will be busy in keeping up with the work on hand.

Generally speaking, the market for old leaf is quiet and trading almost exclusively confined to small lots. A representative of a New York leaf firm is searching the local markets this week and it is reported a few hundred cases have been purchased, though particulars are not yet disclosed. Most of the cases have been purchased of '06 from a Sparta packing.

A little warehouse work is yet to be done to complete the season's packing, but it is fast drawing to a close. The shipments out of storage reach 350 cases from this market to all points for the week.

BANQUET OF BIBLE CLASS AT THE "Y"

Onward and Upward Class Closed Season With Dinner at Which Girl Friends Were Guests.

At the Y. M. C. A. building last evening the members of the Onward and Upward Bible class held the final banquet of the season. It was "Ladies' Night" for the members of the class and each brought a girl friend with her. About twenty young people partook of the four-course dinner which was served. Following the banquet a delightful program was given. Harold Mohr, president of the class, welcomed the guests, relating humorous anecdotes concerning the members of the class. Secretary J. C. Kline of the association responded for the guests. Donald Korst told of the work of the class. The young ladies were toasted by Frank Hazen and the young men by Miss Katherine Jeffrie. The class history was given by Allison Burdick. Robert Cunningham's original poem created a good deal of merriment through humorous allusions to members of the class. Ralph Souham's class prophecy was cleverly arranged and well delivered.

NEW CONGRESSMAN. Dr. Theron Aldin, now representative in congress from Akin, New York, he holds a reputation of being one of the 'oldest characters in the House and a good many funny stories will probably be told about his doings.

A Minor Loss. It is related by the Rev. F. C. Mallan that he once had occasion to discharge a gardener for dishonesty. The man made an unsuccessful attempt to vindicate his character, and falling in this, said, mournfully to the vicar: "Ah, sir, you will miss me before I be gone half an hour." "I shan't mind that," answered Mr. Mallan cheerfully; "if I don't miss anything else."—Argonaut.

Women Not Numerous. Lida Rose McCabe says that women are lacking in humor and that most of them either take a hyper-serious view of life or look at it from an ultra-frivolous standpoint. Women are too highly conventionalized to be able to appreciate humor with the freeness of men from their broader outlook.

Soldier. Soldier will not adhere to any metal until that is about as hot as the melted solder. In order to solder on to any thick, heavy article either that must be heated or a copper heavy enough to carry and hold much heat must be used.

For a Sprain or Bruise. An usually treated sprain or bruise will often disable the injured person for a month or more, but by applying Morrill Snow-White Liniment and observing the directions with each bottle faithfully, a cure may be effected in many cases in less than one week's time. This Liniment is a most remarkable preparation. Try it for a sprain or bruise, or when laid up with chronic or muscular rheumatism, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which it affords. For sale by Reliable Drug Co., druggists, members American Drug & Trade Association.

Some of our young folks attended the dance at the Barbas home Friday night and report a good time.

NARROW ESCAPE

It was Sunday morning, and Miss Smith was on the point of starting for church. Came a ring at the telephone. "Hello!" "Hello! Is that Miss Smith?" "Yes." "This is Mr. Brown. Say, if I take the 2:06 train will I get out to your house in time for dinner?" "Why—ah—yes, I suppose so, but—" "You remember I was to come and take dinner with you today, and—" "Why, really, I—" "Isn't this Drexel 1 double 7 double 3?" "No." "No; this is Drexel 4 double—" "Say, I beg your pardon! I've got the wrong Smith!"

Strength in Nature. The loosest weed that drifts and waves under the heaving of the sea or hangs heavily on the brown and slippery shore, has a marked strength, structure, elasticity, gradation of substance; its extremities are more finely fibred than its center, its center, than its roots; every fork of its ramification is measured and proportioned; every wave of its languid lines is love. It has its allotted size, and place, and function. It is a specific creature.—Haskin; "The Seven Lamps of Architecture."

The Shade Made by the VUDOR Shade

By Charles Patterson

All Shades of people are shaded by the shade of the VUDOR Shade. There are other shades besides the VUDOR shade—the Sun Shade, the light shade, the dark shade and the "Shade of the old apple tree," but no shade makes the Shade that is made by the VUDOR Shade.

There is nothing shady in the make of the VUDOR Shade except the shade made by the VUDOR Shade. If you want to keep shady always get in the shade of the VUDOR Shade. The VUDOR Shade is the young folks shade; and the shade of the young folk's shade oftentimes keeps the old folks in the shade.

There is no shading of the price of the VUDOR Shade. The VUDOR Shade is made in many shades, but the shade is the same in all shades.

The VUDOR Shade is the new shade, and the Shade made by the VUDOR Shade is the newest shade made. J. M. Bostwick & Sons will put you in any shade of the VUDOR Shade, and guarantee the shade to be the right shade. If you've been in the shade of an old shade get in the shade of the new shade, and that, the VUDOR Shade made by the HOUGH SHADE CORPORATION.

"Anybody Here See OLD MAN DUST?"

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

ONE of the most common and least recognized mistakes that the average young girl makes in the love-game is that of thinking that most men like a girl just because other men like her. Because of this notion the average girl never likes to appear in a man-and-girl place without a man tagging at her heels.

Because of this she is continually managing to lug into her conversation with one man references to other men who admire her, places they have taken her, gifts they have given her, tributes they have paid her. She thinks by thus showing her admirer how popular she is, she is sure to increase his ardor.

As a matter of fact she is apt to alienate him. For most men are keener character students in this direction than the girls give them credit for, and no matter how artfully offhand a girl makes her references to these other men who have been bowled over by her rare charms, the average man sees right through her pretense and laughs in his sleeve at her.

A man does not like to think that the girl he is talking about is a freak or a monstrosity whom no one else but he would look at, and who is accepting his attentions because she cannot win any from other men; but on the other hand, if a man is in love with a girl he does not need to have his affections bolstered up by being continually informed that other people like her.

I think men are much more independent in this way than women.

A girl simply must know what all her chums think of the man who is paying court to her. A man never thinks of asking his men friends' opinion of the girl he is in love with.

Perhaps you think that, considering which side of the fence I am on, I can hardly speak so glibly of the man's point of view. Perhaps I could not not that much of what I say is what men have said to me.

One man expressed his opinion on this subject pretty vigorously after a little experience at a dance. It was a dance given by a girl's club. A girl whom he had previously admired very much took her cousin to the dance. Impressed by the idea that it would lower her in other men's eyes if they thought she had no man but her cousin to invite, she had asked him to assume a different name for the evening, as his own name was the same as hers.

Not being used to bearing an assumed name he made a slip and the story leaked out. The man who told me of it said he was much disappointed in the girl. "I thought she had more common sense than that," he said. "I guess she wasn't as much of a girl as I thought her."

I have an idea that most men see through us much more than we realize and that the girl who is all gentile and has no silly pretence to be seen through is the girl who is apt to win out in the love game in the end.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, May 20.—All the fashionable shops display the arrays of summer blouses, either imported or made after imported models. Most of them are handsome and particularly striking by their studied and highly effective simplicity. All kinds of embroidery are used on them. Eyelet is returning to favor; head embroidery is undeniably well installed in the decorative ranks; Bulgarian, Venetian, hebebo, oriental and Madeira are other styles of ornamentation used on these summer blouses. Colored and broderie anglaise blouses are very popular. The collarless blouse seems to be a favorite, and the three-quarter sleeve provides cool comfort during the hot season. Hemstitching, drawn-work and a touch of lace give simple decorations which any woman can copy.

White lawn is the material from which a very pretty blouse is made. The round top is outlined by a two-inch band of lace insertion, over which falls a frill of the material, hemstitched at the lower edge. Hand-run tucks give fullness at the front and over each shoulder. The short sleeves are edged with lace and a hemstitched frill. This model is charming in color, and this model or blue trimmed with cream lace.

A very simple arrangement of tucks and lace is shown in another blouse. The work is handwork, of course, and the groups of tucks run vertically on each side of a row of crocheted buttons and over the shoulders. A band of embroidery that has been worked over in color outlines the square top.

Cotton voile is the material from which a neat colopet model is made. Two shades of blue are used, one a dark navy for the dots, and the lighter natter blue for the featherstitching. This girlish blouse is chic when worn with the blue serge or then suit. There is a long shoulder line emphasized by an extended tab of embroidery; and the short sleeves are edged with a double row of spots and a frill of lace. The round neck is also edged with a frill. The hemstitching is alternated with rows of colopets.

The display of negligee novelties in the fashionable shops is unusually attractive just now. Many of the new negligees show practically the same characteristics as the dresses themselves, the more elaborate being in Empire and straight-line effects, with peasant sleeves and draperies and touches of diaphanous materials. Soft, clinging fabrics are used, and there are trimmings of lace and embroidery.

Translucent tulle are being from the shortened waist line, especially in the beautiful new tea gowns and are edged with blindings of rich embroidery and silk ball fringe. Again, the drapery may be composed entirely of black or white Chantilly lace, or worked in hand embroidery. The chiffon and marquisette tunics hang from the shoulder and are not attached, but are made in loose three-quarter coat effect and are worn as a more dressy touch over a plain tea gown. Those semi-transparent coats, extending to knee depth, with deep slashes over the hips, short sleeves and fastening arranged well over toward the left side, are soon also in vogue, not only in allover embroidery and are lined with China silk.

Skirts to wear with these negligees are seen in crepe, mesaline, voile and marquisette. The deep flounces on the sheer white skirts have a detachable under ruffle of silk in pastel shades to match the coat. Some models show several different colors arranged under alternate rows of lace insertions and puffings. The simpler styles have wide flounces of allover lace, or lace-trimmed or accented with flounces, with narrow bands of contrasting silk applied as trimming.

Lingerie blouses are seen in hand-kerechie, linen, balisat, dotted Swiss, fancy dainties, cotton voile. Embroidery, lace and ribbons are freely used to give the finishing touches. The yoke and sleeves show the toisant styles, and the skirts are arranged in banded or tulle effects. The very simple negligees are cut upon kimono lines, with lace or embroidery applied flat as trimmings. Models in Empire effect have wide bow pleats falling from the shortened waist line and ending in a slight train.

Most of the imported models are white, but colored designs are sometimes seen in the fabrics, and hand embroidery in colored floss also gives a color touch. Ribbons to match are run through wide insertions, lace or embroidery, and are finished in rosettes and bows. The loose wrapper is absolutely out of style.

Petticoats are still used, but they are subdued and unassuming. With many frocks the very modish woman discards the petticoat altogether, substituting mullins, but it is noticeable that fashionable tailors this spring are using more drop skirts than they did in the winter, or where drop skirts are not desired often they line a plain skirt with soft silk. This is a step toward greater skirt firmness and form, even though the silk of drop skirt or lining may be of the softest, and it may show a slight change in the direction of the current.

With dark toned costumes, the skirt lining is often made of bright color, some of the vivid hues so much in evidence this spring, and the effect of this gleam of gay color when some movement does bring a flash of it into view is really very coquettish and charming. The bright greens are particularly good for such linings, with the popular dark blue and black and white suits.

As for the petticoat itself, it is, of silk, in silk of the most simple sort. There must be women who wear tulle petticoats with flounces, for one sees such petticoats in the shops, but for the great majority inexpensive petticoats of soft mesaline with very scant flounces, usually accordion pleated, are the thing, and where more money is spent the knowing woman is likely to choose a silk jersey model with flounce of very soft silk, or if wearing qualities are not the chief consideration, of silk mullin or chiffon cloth.

Large flat hats are lined with colored cotton crepe, sometimes stenciled in pale blues and pinks. Lines of striped material are very popular. These are of wash silk, made on tailored lines or of exquisites mousseline de sole, sometimes tricotized over allover lace slips. Tiny buttons of colored enamel, metal, jet or steel are much used on the new blouses.

Plumes in two colors are much used. The all-white hat of fine straw, trimmed with white wings and faced with blue or black velvet, is the new offering for dressy afternoon wear.

Handsome pins are used in the newest of hair bandings, also buckles, etc., to balance the side not having a bow of ribbon.

WRONG FEEDING WASTES VITALITY.

We begin life with a fixed amount of vitality, determined by heredity. If the laws of life were duly complied with this would be sufficient to last probably six times as long as the period of growth, which in man is about twenty years or 120 years. The chief physical cause of the waste of this vitality is, as already indicated, in improper, that is, unnatural, feeding. The great gains in strength that result from living on an approximate-monodiet, in health and in sickness, and such cases as that of the Italian nobleman, Cornaro, indicate that life must be greatly shortened by the common practice of mixing foods indiscriminately. It is well known that Hindus and Filipinos who live on rice almost exclusively attain a great age.

SEEING WITH THE EYE OF FAITH.

It was Robert Browning who said, "The best is yet to be." That single expression is the faith of the hopeful soul. Bells in better times ahead has helped the human race over the hard road of progress. The same kind of faith has helped the individual over the hard road to prosperity.

We are largely what our sentiments are. If we believe in ourselves and our ability to make things come out right we are pretty sure to win our fight. It is only when we acknowledge defeat that we are beaten.

We may get a terrible blow from fate today, but that shouldn't prevent our belief that in the future we are to be able to return it in greater force and with greater effect.

Every railroad line in the country is an triumph of faith. Behind the project that just the road through was the faith of some person who couldn't be daunted or turned aside from his task even when great mountains stood between him and the realization of his dream. The man had faith, plus energy, and he put them to work to remove the obstacle. All of us, no matter what our calling, sometime in our march towards better things, find mountains in our way. It is then that our faith gets its severest trial, because we are forced to believe that "the best is yet to be," though there is little to demonstrate its possibility.

It is in such a time that we must make our faith and our energy work together for the accomplishment of our end.

Sometimes it is pretty difficult to be patient. Sometimes it is pretty difficult to have faith. Yet there is always the better time to be.

We can't be idle one day and work the next and then be idle the next and keep the practice up and expect to accomplish anything. We've got to keep our energy at work. We must make it carry us over the difficult places just as the engine pulls the long train of cars up the long grade. Suppose that whenever the engineer felt a difficult grade he were to say, "What's the use?" and refuse to put his engine to the test of getting over the difficulty that confronted him? The train would never get to its destination and would be a worthless toy. And all because the wisdom in the cab was not big enough to see to the end of the journey.

When men set out to work out the great irrigation problems there were thousands of persons who thought the experiment useless; many who believed it a useless waste of money. The men who believed in irrigation saw the great desert wastes and believed that they could be turned into gardens—veritable Gardens of Eden. They believed the best was yet to be. Today the whole world knows they were right. But in their hours of uncertainty they had to not only overcome how the nature but ancient prejudices.

Exactly what the engineer encounters in his great works is what each of us must encounter in his own life only on a smaller scale. The secret of accomplishment is in having a large faith and will power that will keep the energy at work all of the time.

Helpful Cake Making Hints

Always sift flour and K.C. Baking Powder at least three times. The more sifting, the lighter the cake. Remember that! To cream butter and sugar quickly, warm the sugar slightly. Beat yolks of eggs with rotary beater. Whip whites of eggs with flat spoon whip. Water makes lighter cakes; milk makes richer cakes.

To mix a cake, first cream butter and sugar thoroughly, then add yolks, if used. Then alternately add moisture and flour that has been sifted with baking powder, and stir until smooth and glossy, adding egg whites after thoroughly mixing.

Always use K.C. Baking Powder. Biscuit Helps

At-jays sift flour and K.C. Baking Powder at least three times. Have shortening cold and firm. Mix dough as soft as it can be handled. The softer dough goes into the oven, the lighter the biscuit when it comes out. It is easier for K.C. Baking Powder to do its work in soft than in stiff dough. Mix biscuits very little. Do not knead. Stir up with spoon or knife and press in shape to roll on floured board.

With K.C. Baking Powder results are sure and certain. Ask your grocer for K.C.

Crimson Land

By Byron Williams

NIGHT.

The seed pods rattle in the breeze Above the little grasses. Over every hill in every dale, The touch of Autumn's leaves, The frost spreads low its hoary chill Upon the zephyrs sleeping And stirs the vagrant, waiting breeze Across the valleys sweeping.

MORNING.

The dew drops drift along the road And nestle in the ditches; The blackbird, high upon a limb, His hasty flock-songs pitches, Ahead of the morning sunbeams, While through the interlaced deep The dancing sunbeams shimmer.

NOON.

The forest dapples strive to lift Their blackened heads in gladness; The water droops his tumbled plume, In most dejected sadness, The grapevine, twining on the fence, This last in unbroken juice, The wine of life's life has shed Adown its fibrous sinews.

SUNSET.

The sun, blood red, along the wood Castle shadows ever longer; The chill of evening sides the breeze That waves ever stronger, Now sinks the disc behind the West And leaves the day a-waning When white hoes fiercely through the wood In strident tones complaining!

LEAVES.

But what care we? Within our homes Beside the embers glowing, We drain the cup of thankfulness From Nature's horn overflowing, Now Autumn's chill and Winter's cold, The melancholy drowns— We drink to Happiness and Love And sing to Joy's inspiring!

For when the heart is tuned to sing, Who cares for Winter's chill and sting?

For Company Luncheon.

When preparing a dish for company we like to have it both good to look at and pleasing to the palate. Many dainty dishes may be prepared with little expense if one can spare the time for preparation.

Creamed Chicken in Potato Patties. Into a pint of hot-mashed potato stir one well beaten egg; pack three inches deep in a buttered granite pan and set aside until cold. Turn out carefully; stamp with a large sized cutter, and with a smaller one in the center. Stand well apart in a buttered pan, brush over with beaten egg yolk, and brown in a moderate oven. Just before serving scoop out the center of each patty and fill with creamed chicken or fish. Garnish with parsley.

A salmon loaf is another nice company dish. Pick up the salmon from a pound can; rub with two tablespoonsful of butter, two eggs well beaten, and half a cup of bread crumbs, and a fourth of a cup of cream, half a tablespoonful of minced parsley, cayenne pepper and salt to taste. Mix thoroughly and steam three quarters of an hour in any mould. Serve with Salmon Sauce. Add to the liquor from the salmon a tablespoonful of butter melted, a half cup of milk, boil and thicken with a teaspoonful of cornstarch mixed with two tablespoonsful of cold milk. Cook until smooth, when cold add tomato catsup and salt and pepper.

Mock Pate de Foie Gras. Take a large calf's liver, wipe it with a damp cloth, and lard the top well with salt pork. Put it in a sauce pan. Add one onion chopped one-half a bay leaf, one blade of mace, one dozen pepper corns and four cloves. Pour over sufficient stock to cover and simmer three and a half hours. Cut the liver in thin slices, arrange in a deep dish and strain the liquor over all. Put in a cool place over night. The next day drain the liver and pound to a paste, adding butter melted and poured off the curd. A cup of butter may be needed. Season with salt and pepper and pack in tumbler; cover with melted butter.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Didn't Father have it all planned out lovely, though.

Copyright, A. C. McClure & Co., Inc.

"You may ask me anything you please," she announced, quietly. "I am sure these gentlemen will not fight in my room."

"Very well, Miss Macaire. It will require only a moment. How long have you known this man Hawley?"

"Merely a few days—since I arrived in Sheridan."

"But you were in communication with him before that?"

The pleasant voice and quiet demeanor of the sheriff seemed to yield the girl confidence and courage.

"Yes, he had written me two or three letters."

"You met him here then by appointment?"

"He was to come to Sheridan, and explain to me more fully what his letters had only hinted at."

"You possessed no previous knowledge of his purpose?"

"Only the barest outline—details were given me later."

"Will you tell us briefly exactly what Hawley told you?"

The girl's bewildered eyes wandered from face to face, then returned to the waiting sheriff.

"May—may I sit down?" she asked. "Most certainly, and don't be afraid, for really we wish to be your friends."

She sank down into the chair, and even Keith could see how her slender form trembled. There was a moment's silence.

"Believe me, gentlemen," she began, falteringly, "if there is any fraud, any conspiracy, I have borne no conscious part in it. Mr. Hawley came to me saying a dying man had left with him certain papers, naming one, Phyllis Gale, as heiress to a very large estate in North Carolina, left by her grandfather in trust. He said the girl had been taken West, when scarcely two years old, by her father in a fit of drunken rage, and then deserted by him in St. Louis."

"You—you saw the papers?" Walte broke in.

"Yes, those that Hawley had; he gave them to me to keep for him."

She crossed to her trunk, and came back, a manila envelope in her hand. Walte opened it hastily, running his eyes over the contents.

"The infernal scoundrel!" he exclaimed, hotly. "Those were stolen from me at Carson City."

"Let me see them." The sheriff ran them over, merely glancing at the endorsements.

"Just as you represented, Walte," he said, slowly. "A copy of the will, your commission as guardian, and memoranda of identification. Well, Miss Macaire, how did you happen to be so easily convinced that you were the lost girl?"

"Mr. Hawley brought me a picture which he said was of this girl's half-sister; the resemblance was most striking. This, with the fact that I have never known either father or mother or my real name, and that my earlier life was passed in St. Louis, sufficed to make me believe he must be right."

"You—you—" Walte choked, leaning forward. "You don't know your real name?"

"No, I do not," her lips barely forming the words. "The woman who brought me up never told me."

"Who—was the woman?"

"A Mrs. Raymond—Sue Raymond—who was on the stage, and died in Texas—San Antonio, I think."

Walte swore audibly, his eyes never once deserting the girl's face.

"Hawley told you to say that?"

"No, he did not," she protested warmly. "It was never even mentioned between us—at least, not Sue Raymond's name. What difference can that make?"

He stepped forward, one hand flung out, and Fairbairn sprang instantly between them, mistaking the action.

"Hands off there, Walte," he commanded, sternly. "Whatever she says goes."

"You blundering old idiot," the other exploded. "I'm not going to hurt her; stand aside, will you?"

He reached the startled girl, thrust aside the dark hair combed low over the neck, swung her about toward the light, and stared at a birthmark behind her ear. No one spoke, old

Keith straightened up, looking directly into the fierce questioning eyes.

Walte seemingly stricken dumb, the woman shrinking away from him as though she feared he was crazed.

"What is it?" asked, the sheriff, sternly.

Slowly Walte turned about and faced him, running the sleeve of his coat across his eyes. He appeared dazed, confounded.

"My God, it's all right," he said, with a choke in the throat. "She's—she's the girl."

Christie stared at him, her lips parted, unable to grasp what it all meant.

"You mean I—I am actually Phyllis Gale?" That—that there is no mistake."

He nodded, not yet able to put it more clearly into words. She swayed as though about to faint, and Fairbairn caught her, but she slipped through his arms, and fell upon her knees, her face buried in her hands upon the chair.

"Oh, thank God," she sobbed, "thank God! I know who I am! I know who I am!"

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Search for the Missing.

The note of unrestrained joy of relief in the woman's voice rang through the room, stilling all else, and causing those who heard to forget for an instant the stern purposes of their gathering. Fairbairn, bent over her, like a fat guardian angel, putting her shoulder, her eyes so blurred with tears as to be practically sightless, yet still turned questioning upon Walte.

The sheriff was first to recover speech, and a sense of duty.

"Then this late Miss Macaire out of the conspiracy charge," he said, gravely, "but it doesn't make it any brighter for Hawley so far as I can tell. What's the follow up?"

For a moment no one answered, although Keith took a step forward, reminding instantly of Hope's predicament. Before he could speak, however, Christie looked up, with swift gesture pushing back her loosened hair.

"He was to have met me at the theater to-night," she said, her voice trembling, "but was not there when I came out; he—he said he had important news for me."

"And failed to show up—did he send no message?"

"Doctor Fairbairn was waiting for me instead. He said that Mr. Hawley was called suddenly out of town."

The eyes of the sheriff turned to Fairbairn, whose face grew redder than usual, as he shifted his gaze toward Keith.

"That was a lie," he confessed, lamely. "I was told to say that."

"Just a moment, Sheriff," and Keith stood before them, his voice clear and convincing. "My name is Keith, and I have unavoidably been mixed up in this affair from the beginning. Just now I can relieve the doctor of his embarrassment. Miss Hope Walte and I have been associated together in an effort to solve this mystery. This evening, taking advantage of the remarkable resemblance existing between herself and Miss Macaire, Miss Hope decided upon a mask."

"What's that," Walte broke in excitedly. "Is Hope here?"

"Yes, has been for a week; we've had all the police force of Sheridan hunting her."

The old man stared at the speaker, open-mouthed, and muttered something about Fort Hays, but Keith, paying little attention to him, hurried on with his story.

"As I say, she decided upon impersonating Christie here, hoping in this way to learn more regarding Hawley's plans. We had discovered that the two were to meet after the evening performance at the stage door of the Trocadero. I escorted Hope there, dressed as near like Miss Macaire as possible, and left her inside the vestibule waiting for 'Black Bart' to appear. At the head of the alley I ran into Fairbairn, told him something of the circumstances, and persuaded him to escort Miss Christie back to the hotel. He was not very hard to persuade. Well, Hawley came, and Hope met him; they went out of the alleyway together arm in arm, talking pleasantly, and turned this way toward the hotel. The doctor and I both saw and heard them. I was delayed not to exceed two minutes, speaking a final word to Fairbairn, and when I reached the street they had disappeared. I have hunted them everywhere without finding a trace—I have even been through the resorts. She has not returned to the hotel, and I burst in upon you here hoping that Miss Macaire might have some information."

She shook her head, and Walte, glaring intently at the two of them, swore sharply.

"Good God, man! my girl! Hope, alone with that damn villain. Come on, Sheriff; we've got to find her, Walte, thought," and he strode almost maniacally across the room. "First, I want to know who the devil you are?"

Keith straightened up, looking directly into the fierce questioning eyes.

"I have told you my name—Jack Keith," he replied, quietly. "Doctor Fairbairn knows something of me, but for your further information I will add that when we met before I was Captain Keith, Third Virginia Cavalry, and bearing dispatches from Longstreet to Stonewall Jackson."

The stuff old soldier, half-crazed by the news of his daughter's peril, the gleam of his eyes still revealing uncontrolled temper, stared at the young, or face fronting him; then slowly he held out his hand.

"Keith—Keith," he repeated, as though bringing back the name with an effort. "By God, that's an old Jefferson Keith's boy—killed at Antietam. And you know Hope?"

"Yes, General."

He looked about as though dazed, and the sheriff broke in not unkindly.

"Well, Walte, if we are going to search for your daughter we better be at it. Come on, all of you; Miss Macaire will be safe enough here alone."

He took hold of Keith's arm, questioning him briefly as they passed down the hall. On the stairs the latter took his turn, still confused by what he had just heard.

"Who is Miss Macaire?" he asked. "Phyllis Gale."

"Of course, but who is Phyllis Gale? What has she to do with General Walte? His daughter has told me she never heard of any one by that name."

"Well, Keith, the old man has never told me very much; he's pretty close-mouthed, except for swearing, but I've read his papers, and picked up a point or two. I reckon the daughter, Miss Hope, maybe never heard a word about it, but the boy—the one that was shot—must have stumbled onto the story, and repeated it to Hawley. That's what set that fellow going. It seems Mrs. Walte's maiden name was Pierpont, and when she was seventeen years old she was married to the son of a rich North Carolina planter. The fellow was a drunken, dissolute, good-for-nothing. They had a daughter born—this Phyllis—and when the child was three years old her father, in a fit of drunken rage, ran away, and to spite his wife took the little girl with him. All efforts to trace them failed, and the mother finally secured a divorce and, two years later, married Willis Walte. Walte, of course, knew those facts, but probably they were never told the children. When the father of Mrs. Walte's first husband died, he left all his large property to his grandchild, providing she could be found and identified within a certain time, failing which the property was to be distributed among certain designated charities. Walte was named sole administrator. Well, the old man took as much interest in it as though it was his own girl, but made mighty little progress. He did discover that the father had taken the child to St. Louis and left her there with a woman named Raymond, but after the woman died the girl completely disappeared."

"Then Miss Macaire is Hope Walte's half-sister?"

"That's the way it looks now."

"And Hawley merely happened to stumble on to the right party?"

To Prevent Bird Extinction. A law has been passed in Australia and New Guinea to prevent plumes, skins or eggs of birds being sent out of the country. The bird of paradise in New Guinea and the lovely lyre bird in Australia have been threatened with extermination by the petty bird murderers after money.

The Hardest Part. A man wisely has said that teaching a child to be good is a serious problem, and he might have added that most of us find furnishing the example even harder.

Improved Type of Comb. Tonics may be applied as the hair is being combed by a comb invented by a Maryland woman, having hollow, perforated teeth and a reservoir on the back.

PERIL IN ICE BOXES

MOST REFRIGERATORS UNCLEAN AND FULL OF GERMS.

How Scientists Explain the Filthy Condition of These Receptacles Which Dr. Wiley Calls Charnel Houses of Death.

Science has recently shed a flood of light on the important subject of sanitary refrigeration by the aid of the microscope and the investigations of the bacteriologists. There are millions of refrigerators in daily use, and thousands are being sold every year, which are unclean and uncleanable, and you only need to put your nose inside of one to realize the truth of this assertion.

They are mostly lined with galvanized iron or with the same material painted white, which only adds to the trouble. The cause of the filthy condition is easily understood as explained by the scientists.

When viewed under the microscope the crystals which look so beautiful on galvanized iron are found to overlap each other, each one having a distinct edge not visible to the naked eye but simply large to catch and hold some of the grease which the person cleaning the refrigerator is trying to wash or wipe away.

Grease sticks to galvanized iron most tenaciously. You cannot wipe it off with a damp cloth as you can from porcelain, but it remains there after you think you have cleaned your refrigerator. Grease is a natural bed for germs. Let the ice run out and you have warmth, moisture and grease. In such a place germs will multiply with amazing rapidity. This accounts for the awful "something dead in it" smell which you find in most refrigerators. The germs feed on the grease; in the act of digesting they throw off a gas which causes the small above referred to, but the product of their digestion is poisonous, a deadly poison. Dr. H. M. Wiley, the United States government pure food expert, says: "The ordinary ice box is a charnel house of death, which not only breeds disease but spreads it."

It is not necessary for the ice to run out for germs to flourish. Nothing less than a freezing temperature will suspend their deadly work; the lower the temperature the slower they multiply, and from this fact you can see how necessary it is to keep refrigerator doors closed and the ice chamber full. A freezing temperature is of course impracticable in a domestic refrigerator where the doors are frequently opened, so the only thing to do is to get a refrigerator which can be readily cleaned.

CAN IRON GARMENT EVENLY

Board That is Made to Fit Sleeves and is Adjustable to Different Levels.

The average ironing board is much too large to slip into the sleeve of the average woman's shirtwaist, so an Ohio man has devised a sleeve ironing board. This device is made of two boards, one acting as a base and the other shaped like a sleeve, hinged upon it and collapsible so that the two can be folded together when necessary and form a flat object, taking up little room. A hook fastened to the baseboard holds the ironing section rigid in whatever position it is desired, either closed or elevated. This is achieved by thrusting the free end of the hook into one of various holes along the supports, and the ironing portion is thus maintained at different levels. Without a device of this kind the laundress can only iron sleeves out by going over them as they lie stretched out on the board, and this process often causes unsightly creases. Slipped over a small board the sleeves can be ironed smooth in every part.

Bicycle Rider's Narrow Escape. An unusual mishap befell Wm. Thomson of Old Meldrum, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, lately. While cycling against a very strong wind, the ashes from his pipe were blown behind his neck and set fire to his rubber coat, his shirt and muffler. Soon he was wrapped in flames. In vain he tried to beat them out, and he was neverly burned before a farmer, who heard his shouts for help, drowned out the fire with water.

Too True.

"Bridget, I feel so ill I wish you would not go out today. Couldn't you get what you are going for just as well tomorrow?" "Faith, an Oi can't tomorrow or any day, I was going out to get meself a new job."—Harper's Bazar.

Success in Canada.

It must not be thought that capital is everything in starting an orchard or a farm. In fact, it is unwise for anyone, even though he has had experience in the old country, to invest his money and undertake to conduct fruit growing or agricultural operations before having first gained a sufficient knowledge of his new surroundings.—Canadian Gazette.

FAMOUS PAINTING BY J.C. DOLMAN. "AM I MY BROTHERS' KEEPER?"

Famous Painting for New York Board of Education by J. C. Dolman, was recently presented to the New York City Board of Education by Alfred Morley. Ex-President Roosevelt made the presentation speech. The painting enjoys an international reputation, having won the prize at the National Academy in London in 1909. It is one of the masterpieces in human interest, picturing a typical London Park scene in the gray dawn. On the bench are seen the unfortunate souls who have had to pass the night, getting what sleep they could in their exhausted condition. An unusually pathetic touch is given the group by the presence at the right of a mother with her trusting babe, both asleep on the shoulder of the man who could not give them the support they deserved.
